97 Turning POINT

"You can't turn back the clock, but you can wind it up again."

At NSHS there is always a shoulder to lean on.

● This year, 1997, is a turning point for Newton South High School. South's history will change greatly from this year to next year. The most important turning point is that the history will change greatly from this year to next year. The most important turning point is the retirement of Dr. Ernest Van Seasholes who has been principal of the high school since 1974. Next year the faculty and students will welcome a new principal to the Newton South family. In addition to a new leader, South will also welcome the advantages of a new auditorium, library, and fine arts facilities. Also, next year South will abandon its traditional schedule and adapt a new time and learning schedule.

● For the seniors, this year is a crucial point in their lives as they leave their homes and venture into the adult world of college or work. Also, almost all of the seniors were born in 1979 and are now graduating in 1997. If you turn the last two digits of both those years, they become the other. Thus, 79 goes to 97.

● 1997 is a turning point in the lives of all the members of the New South community. Good luck in the future.

Dedication

Ernest Van B. Seasholes

Van and his wife Diane at a faculty function

"A truly wise and caring man. All that he has given of himself has made South as wonderful as it is." — Mr. Todd

Van can often be seen cheering on the Lions

We dedicate this yearbook to Van Seasholes, principal of Newton South High School for the last twenty-three years, who has been a model to us all. This gentle, modest man has molded a school academically distinguished, psychologically sensitive, yet vitally alive to contemporary challenges. South is a resilient, far-reaching place in large part because of his vision.

Perhaps one word that captures Dr. Seasholes is ubiquitous. He is present and attentive to the needs of each member of our community. Every year, he knows all South students by name and remembers them years after. Before vacations, he visits classes to wish us well, writes to us before school begins and after it's over. No ball game goes unattended; no sick student in the hospital goes unvisited. His strength, love, and sorrow during the tragic deaths of our students were palpable. This extraordinary presence, the tall, well dressed, slightly smiling, warm man, does much to bring together the many disparate elements of our public high school.

Another characteristic of Dr. Seasholes is his self-effacing, yet courageous manner. He will frequently put himself forward to protect and help others, yet rarely claim credit for his accomplishments, which are substantial. Although he has taught in Nigeria, developed our Chinese sister program at the Jing-Shan School, created and helped maintain the Principal Center and other boards at Harvard, been a longtime member of such boards as the College Board and Amherst College, where he also received an honorary degree, we do not hear of these. When he was chosen one of the country's most distinguished principals, thereby enhancing South's national reputation, we did not hear it mentioned. Instead, he speaks of the track team's marvelous spirit or the pluck of girls' field hockey. He celebrates a trip of the chorus, or a meal served by students at Rosie's place. He fights for the rights of all students. He himself may walk the "Hunger March," but he will talk instead of the disabled student who made the trip.

When such leadership occurs, all reach a little harder and higher. The school is inspired. Such inspiration and quality are very hard to lose. We honor him.

In Memory

Dr. Margaret Addis

For over twenty years, Margaret Addis served as the chairman of the Newton South guidance department. She fought avidly to ensure the best for her students, and her devout attitude inspired the fellow faculty to do the same. Unfortunately, Dr. Addis passed away in early July after a long bout with cancer. Her passing touched all, and a memorial was held in her honor on September 4. Margaret Addis spent almost 50 years as an educator, and 30 years at Newton South. Her dedication to her job and the well being of students will be missed by those in both the Newton South community and the country.

By Denebola writers

Rana Saab

"Beautiful on the inside as well as on the outside, Rana was a loyal friend who will be sadly missed, but never forgotten." — Rachel Carlino

Many may not remember Rana Saab. She attended Newton South for only a brief two years. She died late in our sophomore year, only five months before the car accident. The previous summer, doctors had diagnosed Rana with cancer. For reasons of her own, Rana chose not to share her burden with her many friends in the Newton community. With the sole support of her family, she underwent chemotherapy for the remaining half year of her life.

Rana was caring, outgoing, hard-working, and completely unbashful. Some may remember her screaming through the hallways freshman year. Others may remember Rana's unrehearsed and often humorous gymnastics routines. Her close friends all have personalized memories of a time he or she helped her with schoolwork, rolled down the hill behind Brown with her, or just made her laugh.

By Amanda Treat

Some people come into your life and quickly go. They leave footprints on your heart and you will never be the same.

Ricky Harrington

One year after that tragic accident, as the students of Newton South bustle through the hallways, something seems to be missing. Maybe it's the smiling face that Ricky was never seen without or maybe it's the echo of Ricky's laugh as it trailed behind him after someone told him a joke, or maybe it was that determined look that Ricky had as he drove through the paint in one of our basketball games. Whatever special memory you have, one thing is for sure; he'll never be forgotten.

When I think about it, I just miss my friend. Ricky was always there for me whenever I needed him. Whether it was to celebrate a well earned victory or to lean on after a tough day, Ricky was there. Ricky cared about everyone, and it showed by the love and support that he showed all of us. We should all strive to be more like Ricky, Gabe and Matt and share their outlook on life. For those who knew them, we'll never forget. Those who never did meet them missed an opportunity to know three great kids from Newton South High School. We'll never forget you boys, RH, GP, MP 10/13/95.

By John Krazinski

Gabe Puccia

No matter how hard this time has been, we must remember the time that was. We were lucky to grow up with Gabe. We can all appreciate his style, especially in the last year of his life. He became so much more confident and his free spirit was admired by all. He was a kid who walked on the edge, but didn't fall. Sure, he stumbled a bit, but he handled his troubles. I can cite thousands of examples to describe Gabe's personality, but I think one can almost sum it up. I saw him after school one day, just after he returned from St. Sebastian's, his new school. He was dressed strictly according to the dress code. His tie was tied in a square knot and loosely dangled from the collar of his flannel shirt. His jacket was strewn about his waist, and a soccer ball rested against his slashed slacks which also seemed to serve as a note pad for he had math equations scribbled all over them. I laughed, and he countered, "Hey, I like the dress code. The dress code is my friend!"

When stress is high, it is important to look back on Gabe and remember his free spirit. He was a kid who got a rush from making others smile. He had a knack for making people laugh and at putting a different perspective on things. May his memory make us smile forever.

Student Life Points Of View

● The typical student's life: roll out of bed at 7:20, run to class just in time to miss the bell, sleepwalk through Trig test, Chem lab, Hamlet, Spanish quiz, and film on the Great Depression, go home, homework, eat, more homework, maybe half an hour to take in "Friends," sleep. Right? Believe it or not, underneath the layers of homework and sleep depravity, the life of a typical South student is not so generic. South students share the bonds of cheering for the Lions on Thanksgiving, scrubbing rides home as Frosh, securing the rite of passage to the "lot" as upperclassmen, cramming the block before a test in the "library" (Goodwin to those who can remember it), sludging through the mudpit called the courtyard after rain and snowstorms, and running into classmates during one's daily pilgrimage to Needham Street.

● In fact, there is no "typical" student life. Kids pursue every activity thinkable, from rock climbing, electronic music, to South Stage, in and outside of school. On weekends, students' interests also lead them astray from the confines of the cozy community. When asked about her plans, senior Betty Yee replied, "I'm going to the Red Sox game." While some students surf the internet, two dudes named Dave take pleasure in surfing Rhode Island. As for nutrition, perhaps senior John Hugg's takes on the balanced diet, "A liter of Coke for breakfast, and donuts and chocolate for lunch," explains the mystery of why he's so tall. And certainly, not every student follows the same nocturnal patterns as junior Jon Eddy, who goes to bed at eight and wakes up at four to do his homework.

● Although the life of the South student may seem average on the surface, in reality the "typical" South students are incredibly diverse. In fact, South students are proud of their ability to lead the lives they want to lead, to follow the path they choose, and take pride in their differences.

The Starting Point

BACK TO SCHOOL

It's the end of August. We all know what that means: commercials bombard us with a plethora of school supplies; fat magazines come in the mail depicting the hip new trends of the fall. And thoughts turn away from days at the beach with a walkman to days at desks with Dickens and Scott Foresman. Asking your boss for the weekend off becomes asking Mr. Goggin for an extension.

Going back to school after two short, hot months of pure freedom results in a myriad of emotions: dread, nervousness, and for many seniors, excitement. "I was psyched, it was senior year! Come on!" exclaimed senior Anthony Coletti. Others were less than thrilled. Sophomore, Alex Wong, summed up the feelings of most underclassmen by saying, "I really didn't want to come back. But now that I'm back it's all right. But still, I can't wait for summer."

Orange and Blue Day is a deep, deep day

If Cher from "Clueless" had come to Newton South on October 4 this year, she would no doubt have said, "What are they thinking?" We looked like a mass of wild and crazy clashing fools. But we had a good reason for it: it was Newton South's annual Orange and Blue Day. This is the one day which truly captures the essence of Newton South spirit. Students hit every party shop in town, as well as every South alumni's closet, to grab hold of everything orange or blue. From hats to shoelaces to shirts to painted faces, whatever you can dream of can be seen in the halls of Newton South. Even the faculty show their pride in Newton South paraphernalia or orange and blue articles of clothing. And the crazier the better, especially according to the upperclassmen who come up with the most creative and original outfits.

Orange and Blue Day is the perfect day for students to bond while showing their common spirit. Nima Saati said, "I like orange and Anthony likes blue." Or, as Fred Starikov said, "Cool kids wear orange and blue."

Fashion: Turn to the Right

People wear almost anything at Newton South. You can see students with fur carpet bags, black leather pants, pajamas, platform shoes up the wazoo, glitter on their eyelids, "daisy dukes" and lastly, our personal favorites, Newton South attire. Jess Gold feels strongly on the topic of fashion and quite frankly, we agree with her." The people at our school generally don't know how to dress. Some students just try to look good when they really can't, no matter how hard they try. And some simply have "taste." South is a diverse school when it comes to fashion. Some kids still think they're living in the 80's while some try to predict the future by decking out in silver astronaut suits from Apollo 13. As an anonymous senior states, "If my circulation's still flowing, then it's no good." On the contrary, senior Amy Farman believes that she can still "be comfortable and look good without cutting off my blood flow." Remember, no matter where you are or what you're doing, "You are what you wear."

Do I have to? Can't just I sip it?

Looking at the clock in agony, students at Newton South sit on the edge of their seat waiting for the bell to ring at 1:20 pm on Friday signaling the beginning of the fun filled, "Let's drive around all night," Newton South weekend.

South students do many different things during the weekend, but they all have one thing in common. They all end up in the back of Lil' Peach, their very own hangout at least once a night.

Occasionally the students at Newton South are blessed with the guaranteed monthly Club Spin. The real question is what happens after it! With no mode of transportation except their bikes or legs, the underclassmen rely on their parents to bring them home after the dance. However, for the people with transportation they seek entertainment in Boston, or Chinatown, or face the fact that any party in Newton will be over ten minutes after it started.

The hype for the weekend is so powerful and intense that they begin planning on Monday A-block and anticipate until Friday F-block. A great weekend to a South student maybe not remembering it at all or, just "hanging' with their buds."

If there finally is a social get-together in an empty house, by all means go and enjoy yourself, but don't forget to keep your motor running for the Newton Police will be there momentarily!

Someone To Turn To

Sharing the car, borrowing clothes and nodding to each other as you pass by in the halls are the ways most siblings at Newton South act towards each other. Having an older brother or sister to look up to can make adjusting to high school much easier. Freshman Andrew Farman is psyched to have a senior for a sister, "Amy is so nice to me and I look real cool when her senior friends say hi to me in the halls." It's also a lot of fun to see a younger sibling shuffling through the hallways as a freshman. Younger siblings are also always eager for advice about homework and teachers. Senior Chantal Levitt thinks, "It's really weird to see my brother and all his friends at South because I've always thought of them as so much younger." However there are other benefits. Sometimes a few lucky freshmen can sneak into that upperclassmen party if they have an older sibling who is "babysitting" for the evening. Chantal agrees, "It's cool because I know more people in all the different grades now."

Hard Labor

Anthony puts the I in Italian.

Justin shows off Structure's only nice shirt.

The high school senior has 3 essential properties: go to school, sleep when not in aforementioned building, and eat in the interim. To facilitate the third necessity, the senior needs a constant source of income, aside from begging for exorbitant amounts of money from his or her harassed parents. Therefore, the lazy, pathetic, blood sucking, neanderthalic mongrels unwillingly find themselves with one frightening resort: join the work force.

Amazingly enough there are a few token employers who are willing to hire these grumpy lumps of knockwurst. Keep in mind the seniors do not have enough remaining usable brain mass to handle difficult chores. Thus, they are left with meaningless slave labor jobs.

"I am a completely unskilled individual. I have absolutely no redeeming qualities, and rarely am I worth anything to anyone. But at Structure, I'm like butter." said senior Justin Liu.

Others, however, don't shine as much as Liu. Senior Jen Chitel feels unappreciated and neglected at Johnnie's Luncheonette. "Although I am the hostess, I feel I don't have the same impact on the customer as the chef's Turkey Surprise." The senior laborers, although inept, truly become their jobs.

For many people their room is their refuge, a place where no parents or siblings can enter without knocking. Privacy is a big issue because one's room is a sacred place where no one should be allowed to enter without permission. "My room is where I go to get away from my sister," said senior Joe Sheftel. Because so much time is spent in our rooms eating, sleeping, studying or just having fun, many decorate their rooms according to their personalities. "My bedroom definitely reflects my personality because I have tons of pictures of things on my walls that represent what I like," said junior Jordana Gilman. Many are able to express their more creative side through ornamenting their rooms. "My room has a lot of light and a lot of colors, so it's lively and a nice place to be. It's what I like right now but it may change," said sophomore Marianna Leavy-Sperounis.

Most juniors and seniors can count on someone and someplace to go out to during free blocks. Not many have the cash to do this three or four times a day, but they'll go for the ride. sophomores and freshman rely on staying in the cafe or on someone's car.

Since David McCoy won't let us stay in the parking lot and make as many car alarms go off as possible, we are forced to go out. Some of the better places to go are Ming Garden (bad fortune cookies), Panella's, and if you have the time Burger King on Route One.

Most Seniors eat in a free block and look forward to the next one. Free blocks are a time to relax and get away from all the stress; everyone should have as many as possible.

Danger Zone: Construction

For the past two years, Newton South has looked somewhat like a big disaster area: huge piles of dirt and big machines everywhere, cement pipes stacked along Brandeis Rd., and false walls protruding into already crowded hallways. Yet, supposedly, there is some method to this madness. The renovations are still scheduled to be completed before the end of this school year. So perhaps as you read this out in the courtyard, you will be looking across newly-grown fluorescent green grass ar a school void of metal fences and endless orange mesh.

While we have grown accustomed to the longer walks to classes (only half the school ever saw the hallway that ran between Cutler and Goodwin), many students, especially upperclassmen, still anxiously await the completion of construction. "I hope that we don't have to spend half our time at South under these conditions and not get to enjoy the finished results," said senior Jess Deth. This sentiment is shared by many. Senior Josh Funk dislikes traversing the courtyard in bad weather. "I hate when it's muddy because you slip all over the place and people laugh at you if you fall," he explained. Although we will definitely have to spend another winter avoiding snow banks and slush puddles as we slide across the courtyard, hopefully by spring we'll be enjoying the benefits of a real library. Until then, there's nothing to do but close our eyes, cross our fingers, and hope that the banging stops. — by Marni Schultz

Turn the Beat Around

Sometimes I mess myself

I finally found someone to dance with.

As freshmen we shuddered insecurely at the thought of going to an all-school dance and being in the presence of intimidating seniors. Now, four years later we can hardly remember those feelings of uneasiness as we stride in fully ready to boogie down. The dance "The Grind," "Club Spin" and the Turkey Dance all helped to improve the reputation of South dances. The fog machine, strobe light, and the newly established non-alcoholic bar have all been great successes. The driving force behind, "Club Spin" was to create an atmosphere more like a night on the town than a school dance. "School dances are a good opportunity to meet new people in a more relaxed setting opposed to the everyday school environment," senior Lou Turgel remarked. So panicked freshman and self-assured seniors get down and, "Everybody dance now!"

by Michael Cooper

The Turnpike

One cannot fully experience South until driving into the senior lot for the first time. Under the surface of proper glass, smashed pumpkins and yard waste lies the haven for the seniors of south.

But driving is not just the parking lot. One must contain the vast knowledge of the clutch, or at least the ability to push the lever into drive. Besides the essentials and the parking "Lot," driving is a ticket to freedom. If half the senior class isn't sitting on your "car" then you are permitted to leave at your will. Most of the time, that leads one to Neeham Street and the vast array of delicacies it has to offer.

The privilege of driving is not without its faults. Accidents do happen. "I love driving, especially in reverse," concedes Senior Lubov Getmansky. That says it all. Overall, driving at South has been an experience. Most of us can say that we have survived with no permanent scars from stray footballs or Nadia Alam. The days of driving at South couldn't be better.

Many team's come up with extremely original team spirits. For example, sometimes walking down the crowded halls of the school, you can see guys in drag, girls in their pippy longstocking attire, or teams in togas, Some common spirits include dress-up, wearing uniforms, or dressing all in one color. "It's a fun way to get use out of my wacky, zany costumes" said junior Emily Rindler. Senior captain Rachael Kaplan exclaimed, "Team and school spirit are both good ways to bring the school together, I love it!" So, go out there, put on some crazy outfit, join the others, and have fun!

Senior Slump

Senior Slump is a valuable time of realizations during one's senior year. Questions that one would previously never ask oneself arise: Do I really feel like doing homework ever again? Will my teachers care if I skip the first five classes and come late to the next thirty-five? Are contingents relevant to my life? Whatever the question may be that pertains to school, the answer is NO! School doesn't need you anymore, seniors! It is time to get ready for college, pretend it's summer time, so Hakuna Matata which means, "no worries for the rest of your life." Senior Slump is time to relieve all the stress that once caused you pimples and no sleep. Most importantly of all, it's time to be wild and crazy and let those irrelevant homework assignments go. Turning POINT

Pressure Point

● Academics are a vital part of Newton South High School. We are part of an elite group of schools which offer a rich selection of classes such as Russian, Hebrew and Chinese. Our school is designed so that whatever classes you may choose to take you will get an outstanding education.

● Whether you have to get up at 6:45 to make your A-block class or you are able to sleep in until homeroom, your day is filled with non-stop learning. A typical student's schedule is going from pre-calculus across the school to studio art back to creative writing then on to psychology then to Spanish next to chemistry and ending with Latin, using those crucial five minutes to maneuver your way around the construction. Students at South deserve a lot of credit for their constant diligence and effort.

At any time on any given day if you walk into what used to be Goodwin Commons, you will inevitably find what bears some resemblance to a library, and South students of all grades using the space as a place to get some last-minute cramming in before the test. While some prefer cramming, others, like junior Jon Eddy, plan their time and wake up at four in the morning to get their work done. Others simply try and avoid studying as much as possible. Some people even have a favorite position to study in, like senior Dave Mansbach who reaps the benefits of studying upside down so the knowledge and blood can flow directly to his head. However you study, though, most agree that it has to be done.

Teachers and Students

My name means love in Russian

Ms. Fairley says, "I'll give you an A if you bark."

Who's the master?

In elementary school, they teach you your ABC's and not to eat paste; in college, they will most probably lecture at you for class periods on end. However you look at it, teachers have always played an important part in their students' lives, and Newton south is no exception. The faculty at Newton South is unique in its willingness to listen to the ideas of its students and, as a result, its ability to facilitate a type of mutual learning and an education based upon mutual respect between teachers and students. Even the administrators at Newton South like the housemasters and Dr. Seasholes take time out to teach a class. However much we might dislike them when Sunday night rolls around and in the middle of the Simpsons and we realize that we have a paper and a test due tomorrow, we also should remember all they do for us. The teachers at South are willing to offer us extra help in our subjects, advise us for clubs, guide us through a particular subject, and even read our essays and write us college recommendations when the time rolls around. Students at Newton South, for these and many more reasons, are extremely lucky to have the teachers they do.

Life Skills

Life skills is a program designed to teach students with special needs the skills needed for independent living and jobs after high school. Students in the program study not only the basic academic subjects, but also household and job skills. Some students hold jobs at local businesses, while performing necessary tasks around school such as mail delivery and recycling.

As well as learning the household and job skills, the life skills students are taught the social skills necessary for successful interaction with each other and mainstream students. With the help of teachers and experiences in the life skills program, students are able to succeed in the competitive active world after graduation!

English As A Second Language

The ESL program provides students from countries such as Russia, Japan, Poland, Taiwan, Israel, Brazil, Holland and many more with a valuable resource at South. Imagine all the adjustments and changes you have to deal with when moving to another town; well imagine what it would be like to move to another country and then have to learn another language as well. The ESL program at Newton South provides these students with help in improving their fluency in reading, writing, and speaking the English language. The goal of the ESL program is to aid the students in the two to twenty blocks a week they are there in order to help them feel comfortable enough with their new environment and second language to attend the typical classes for their grade level at South. The ESL curriculum also includes classes which cover American history, as well as the writing and grammar work. Newton South prides itself on its diversity, and at the core of that diversity lies the ESL program.

Nursery School

Matthew, Ana, Shea, Mika, Nathan, Phillip, Paul, Kevin, Daniel, Samantha, and Levy always manage to make us laugh. They are adorable young creatures that love to run around the room making sounds, playing games, reading books, doing puzzles, coloring, and painting and it doesn't matter what they are doing because every activity is for them. It does not matter how dirty they get, how bad their diapers smell, who was mean to them, how bad snack was or how much they miss their mommy, for those few hours they enjoy being in school. When you look at those kids, you notice their genuine thirst for knowledge as they study hard to learn the ABC's and their complete yearning to grow up as they try to remember to brush their teeth every night and morning. It was nice to watch most of them enter the years as young three year old, loud, uncooperative, obnoxious, unable to sit still for a story, leaving as mature but still young four year olds, willing to hold a discussion with the high schoolers, asking questions hoping to learn something from the answer, searching for us to teach them how to read. It is remarkably frustrating often times to watch these inexperienced kids be hurt by other kids, watching them say, "You're not my friend, so you can't come over an play today . . . " However other times it is rewarding when you see the kids smile and comment enthusiastically on how they enjoyed the project you planned. Often when working with the nursery kids we found ourselves reminiscing and trying hard to remember how we were at their age, but that was too difficult. It seems strange that we worked with these kids so early in their lives that they will never be able to remember us, but we will always remember them.

After many weeks of preparation, the day we were all waiting finally arrived: it was time to meet our little brothers and sis-s. We had all been waiting for anticipation wondering who they uld be? Would they like me? Would I like them? And in mid-vember all our questions were answered. For the rest of the r, most of us spent about three hours a week with out "child" ich rustled in many strong bonds being formed. Going skating, ing a movie, and visiting the museum are just some of the merous activities students can do with their child. Other pop-r activities include going to the park, playing basketball, and king cookies. No matter what the activity may be though, just ng there for your child is what matters most. "It felt great help-a child who really needed me," senior Lesley Rosenbloom d. "I really enjoyed spending time with my little sister." Al-ugh many may find this program rather time-consuming, see-the joy you're bringing into a child's life makes it all worth ile. As senior Julie Lee put it, "One to One does take up a of time, but I'm really glad I signed up for it. It's a great pro-m."

Whether taken as a minor to fill those art requirements or taken throughout all four years to pursue a passion, every student at Newton South eventually comes to know the world tucked away down the infamous art corridor. For many of us, the five art rooms have created a sub-community at South that has let us escape from the academic side of school each day, if only for an hour or two. Senior Matthew Casey says, "I love Mr. Wixon's room because of all the windows and the sunlight. It's always warm in there, and I can go in and just do homework or work on my glass project. And there's a radio!" For many of South's more artistic students, spending an hour or two each day in one of the art rooms feels more like a relaxation than a class, and we even sacrifice our free blocks!

Gym is a class you can either love or hate. The fifty minutes of exercise can be a fun-filled experience, or a horrible one. Depending on what teacher you have, who's in your class, and the way you look at it, you will choose to go and participate, or go to the nurse. The permitted three skips are enough for some people, but for those who don't like to sweat during school, the last week of the term is make up time. Students who don't like gym but play sports feel that the two hours a week devoted to gym are unnecessary. Sophomore Liz D'Auria said, "If you do sports five days a week for two hours a day, isn't that enough?" Other students argue that gym is a fun time to spend socializing with classmates. "Gym is fun cause you can get all hot and sweaty with your peers," said sophomore Elana Mann. But, everyone agrees that a good teacher can make class fun. "I look forward to gym and Ms. Kennedy's pink pants every week," said junior Shawn Deweese, while senior Mike Snyder said, "Ms. Kennedy's forty minutes stretches in a fifty minutes class are the best!" Either way you always have something to look forward to as a junior or senior. As senior Andrew McDonnell said, "Independent study kicks butt!"

The 96-97 school year will be remembered by local thespians as the year of performances in the Cafe, moving music stands at Brown, and the new South auditorium's debut. Newton South's drama club, South Stage, had a particularly ambitious year, averaging a production a month, and totaling eleven plays and two scene nights.

The year opened strongly with the complex play "Hard Times" directed by our own Mr. Honeyman. Next up was the festival of one-acts, consisting of three frosh/sophs and two upperclassmen plays, and directed by seniors Marcy Grossman, Amy Kimpel, B.J. Novak, and Emily Porter, and by South stage's favorite guest director Margie Zohn. Derek Nelson (aka Ms. Leslie's husband) directed the next show, "All in the Timing," and Megan Schiff closed up the first semester with a one-act musical "Closer Than Ever." The year concluded with the traditional fare of an entry to the Mass. Drama Festival in late winter, the musical in early spring, and the North/South Shakespearean play in late spring, in the brand new South auditorium.

As the year winds down to a close, South Stage president Meg Schiff reflects, "For the past four years theater has consumed my life, and I've loved every minute of it." Kate Sydney observes "South Stage ushers us from little freshmen amateurs to truly passionate actors in only four years." Well maybe, but what can be said of South Stage is this: "It's the only place where it's okay to be weird!"

● Sports are a big part of life at Newton South. Participating in a team is a great experience. "I love participating in athletics! It has two great aspects: playing a sport you love, and belonging to a gifted group of people," claims sophomore Marisa Keller. Physical activity is very demanding and requires a lot of energy and focus. However, playing with teammates makes the hard work worthwhile and the task at hand more bearable. "Sports developed my confidence and ability to balance my schoolwork and athletics," says senior Jeff Hahn. Although sports consume a large chunk of a student athlete's time, they help build relationships with people of all ages and a true sense of school spirit. As Colin Hickey states, "Every time I step on the field, I'm proud to be a lion." At South, sports relieve our stress, build cooperation and give us all something to cheer about!

Football

The Newton South Lions, led by a strong core of returning seniors, were poised to take the DCL by storm. Unfortunately a series of tough-fought close losses pushed them back into the middle of the pack. The skill level of the team far surpassed the end result of 4-6. The offense was run by starting quarterback Padraic O'Shaughnessy and the dominant running of Mike Nason, who surpassed one thousand yards. The defense had its ups and downs. Led by the tackles Eddy Dabuzhsky, Adam Umina, the free safety Scott Blanchard, and the senior co-captain, linebacker Louis Turgel, they made it an exciting season. "Football is a rough, and tough sport. I love those tight pants and crop tops, and I'm not talking about the cheerleaders," said senior Nora Capraro.

Soccer

Your breath shortens, your cleats squish, your socks soak, but your soul strives for the thrill of the game. This is what soccer is all about.

Despite the expansion of the soccer field, the loss of ten of last year's seniors, and multiple injuries, the team was not discouraged by these "disadvantages." "The team worked hard in practice, and we were not intimidated by the other experienced teams," replied senior Amanda Treat.

"The outlook was not to be #1 in the state, but to bond as a team and develop into fine, young players. The chemistry of the team is what pushed the players in the games," replied senior Julie Hom. Each player distributed their skills, talent, and desire expressing maturity as players. The team record was just shy of making it to the state tournament. A tie against L-S, and battles with Bedford and Westford exemplify that the up-and-coming NS team will not back down because of their inexperience of playing with each other.

Co-captains Kristina Cormier and Marisa Casey both believe that NS soccer looks bright for the future. Maturity and experience will edge out other teams. This year was a rebuilding year, but next year the king of the jungle will be the "lions."

Babylon) Ashkouri, and Paul Curley. Although the team lost captain Matt "Creator of the Mighty Linda" Bloom, they added coach Spencer to juice up the offense. Building up the big games of the season, Coach Patrick John Haskell guided the team through unforgettable wins at Lincoln Sudbury, the "beautiful pitch at Boston Latin, and league leaders Concord-Carlisle and Acton Boxboro (tie with 16 seconds left.) With a rising future of 15 returning Lettermen, the future looks bright and promising while the past season will always be longed for, especially the rugby style "tackleing" game.

Cross Country

Led by the excellent coaching skills of Marianne and Steve McChesney, the girls cross-country team accomplished many goals this season. The freshman, junior, and varsity teams were all DCL champions. The girls team captured the Eastern Massachusetts Championship for the first year in a row. The varsity was also ranked twenty-fifth in the nation after wins at the Bay State and Brown Invitationals.

As a team, we will remember all the weeks of determination and hard work we put in. "This is the best season NSXC has ever had, our unity as a team brought us our biggest victories," says senior captain Rachael Kaplan.

This year's cross-country team had set high goals at the beginning of the season, many of which were accomplished. Often overshadowed by a spectacular women's team, the men made history this fall by going undefeated in the DCL. They also went on to become DCL champions and qualify for the All-state meet for the second year in a row.

Sparked by the leadership of tri-captains George Matsumoto, Chi Hoang, and John Krazinski, the team displayed skill as well as depth by having a combined JV and varsity record of 15-1. Veterans Vihann Kong, Robbie Silverman, and Brian Rothschild, as well as newcomers Yoni Haiminis and Yuval Mazor, all greatly contributed to the incredible skill and atmosphere of the team.

Field Hockey

An extremely talented and well-rounded field hockey team represented Newton South this year. Hoping to compete in post-season state tournament games, the field hockey team battled its way through the toughest league in Massachusetts. Remaining optimistic and highly competitive in every game, the team ended with a frustrating 4-11-3 record. "Although we didn't accomplish our goal of making the state tournament we still hung together and had a great time." said co-captain Nadia Alam.

The unity of the field hockey team was clear on and off the field. Led by a strong core of nine seniors the team was determined to make Newton South history. The starting line normally included seniors Julie Lee, Jessica Gold, Heather Martin, Jayne Sandman, co-captain Erica Browne, and Maggie Goldwasser, juniors, Abby Kirschner, Alison Suzuki, goalie Sophia Sahinidis and sophomores Bethie Miller and Michelle Baldassari. The versatility and talent of all varsity players helped the team look past shortcomings and stay optimistic throughout the season. Despite early season injuries and disappointing losses the team stayed and played tough to the bitter end.

Some highlights of the season included beating Bedford 3-0 at the annual night game and holding DCL champs Concord-Carlisle scoreless at halftime. Coaches Lyn Meterparel and Jane Roderick inspired the team to work hard and give every game 110%. The combination of spirit and determination created one of the best teams in N.S. history. — Erica Browne

Golf

The golf team had a typical rebuilding season, having lost six golfers from last year's squad. The inexperience of the golf team was the reason for the 3-9-1 record. The team started off the season with high hopes. They seemed unbeatable after dominating Concord-Carlisle in the opening match of the season. Then reality hit as they went into funk, losing eight matches in a row. The losing streak ended in a close match against Boston Latin. The biggest moral victory came when the team tied the highly touted team of Bedford. A loss to Concord-Carlisle followed this. The final match came against Boston Latin. South won convincingly to sweep Boston Latin and keep from ending up the sole holder's of last place in the Dual County League.

The record of this team does not show the quality of the dedicated golfers of the golf team. No matter how badly this team lost or was losing each golfer showed up with intensity. The seniors stopped at nothing to try and win every match. "I feel we played better than our record shows. The DCL was a tough league and we were competitive in most of our matches," says Brendan Mauri. He adds, "I thought the seniors set a good example for younger players. The learning experience of this season will make them better in the long run."

The senior leadership and coaching of coach Tom Steeves are what kept the team together through the long losing streak. The team had fun despite the disappointment of a losing records.

Volleyball

The Newton South volleyball team has always been known as a hard working, competitive, and successful team. This year the 1996 volleyball girls proved just that by striving to the top, earning the title of undefeated DCL champions. The girls united and made the team successful as well as fun. All the girls played to their best ability and practiced with more intensity than ever before. "The 1996 women's V-ball team is the beginning of a new era of success," says Leanna Chin. "The teams to come will look back on our squad of females and notice a competitive spirit as well as our eagerness to win." They will see a long, hard-worked three-out-of-five game win, and the pride we all left with. The 1996 volleyball girls made it to the semi-finals of the state championship history yet again. I am sure with the coaching of Judy Kennedy, an intelligent and capable woman full of hope and ideas, the teams will only get much better. The 1996 volleyball girls are a team to remember.

Cheerleading

"Cheerleaders rule the world," — this year they really did. Anyone who came to a football or basketball game couldn't help but to participate in the spirit and enthusiasm that the 96-97 cheerleading squad had. They worked hard everyday in surpassing their goals and everyone else's expectations becoming a leading squad in the DCL. In addition to daily workout routines and lengthy practices, the NSHS cheerleaders performed to perfection at pep rallies, games, and especially competition. The team was led by coach Christina Grillo and captains Kerri Kazarian and Rachel Abramovitz. "We had a lot of fun, we laughed as hard as we worked," says junior captain Rachel Abramovitz. Grillo, an award winning coach from Connecticut, recognized the potential of the squad, taking them to a higher level and competition. "Individual commitment to the group effort is what made the team work," says Grillo. This year's team was very experienced from the beginning. "Throughout our season we built a united team based on mutual respect and dedication," says senior captain Kerri Kazarian. It was a year to remember for the cheerleaders working hard tossing high and cheering loudly.

Powder Puff

Yeah, we won!!

With the cold, the snow, the lack of lines, and spirit riding high, PowderPuff '96 was sure to be an interesting game. Let's just get one thing out of the way: the seniors dominated. The seniors were one up on the juniors from the beginning, because of the additional experience that they had from the year before. During the two weeks of intense training, the seniors were outside trying to keep warm by doing suicides and other rigorous drills, while the juniors threw the ball around and worked out in the gym. Prior to the game, the juniors felt that they were the favorites due to the enormous size of their team and the magical power of their "Gap" headband. However, not even those headbands could prevent the potent running game of the seniors as they sprinted to a 36-8 victory. Lillian Shaller, Erica Brown, Shara Miller, Jaime Lucove and Tara Broughel's touchdowns put the seniors far ahead. "The seniors worked so hard at practice and it surely paid off in the longrun. Maybe the juniors would like to hire us to coach them next year," said senior quarterback Tara Broughel. Salonge Burnett had a tremendous comeback, running the length of the field for a touchdown to put the juniors on the board. Junior Danna Ben-Akiva said "I was really nervous when I saw that I was being guarded by Jen Chitel, but I soon realized she was no match for me and the other juniors. This year's game was a great competition and a wonderful time was had by all."

Basketball

The girls basketball team turned heads and shocked the DCL this year with their intense defense and undying offense. The Lions were led by senior co-captains Jessica Burrows and Daenya Rosbeck. Junior Emily Brock, sophomore Anna Brock and freshman Kiara Upshaw controlled South's inside scoring and rebounding. Junior Solonje Burnett, sophomore Adri Logalbo, and freshman Joanna Ducey's relentless defense caused many problems for South's opponents. Outstanding shooting by sophomore Carlynn Finn and freshman Jessica Donovan helped to lift South's offense. Giving the Lion's the needed depth, senior Alexandra Apostalakis and sophomore Vicki Kaplan helped the Lions take on the tough teams in the DCL. Time spent working hard together in practice paid off with many big victories. The Lions were always intense and never let up leading to a successful season. With dedicated young players the team looks strong for years to come, to carry on the Lions' pride!

The 1996-97 boys' basketball team had a very tough act to follow. Last year's team compiled a 20-2 record, on the way to a #1 ranking in the state tournament. Although this year's Lions did not win twenty games, they were successful far beyond their expectations.

The team was led by its tri-captains, Onaje Woodbine, John Krasinski, and Scott Blanchard. Woodbine could truly score at will, leading the Dual County League in scoring. Krasinski was a consistent three-point specialist, while Blanchard got every loose ball in all games. Seniors Brendan Mauri and Matt Sable stepped up when needed. Paul Curley was an excellent point-guard and Joe Ripley was always the quickest man on the floor.

Junior Tyson Tyler played in complement to Woodbine. Tyler led the team in three-point percentage, and also fired up the team with his tenacious defense. Juniors Mike Beaser, John Goodson, and Jeff Levin were thrust into key roles in only their first year on the team. Beaser had no trouble guarding the opposition's toughest player; Goodson surprised everyone with his rebounding; and Levin was willing to take the big shots. Robert Bullock and Ari Hauben made large contributions to the team with their ability to come off the bench and make tremendous plays.

In the tradition of Newton South basketball, the Lions' defense and intensity enabled them to surprise their opponents throughout the entire season.

Indoor Track

The women's indoor track team started the 1996-1997 season with high hopes and clear goals. Everyone worked incredibly hard to achieve both their personal and team goals whether it involved hill workouts, ladders on the track, weights, or drills. The practice schedules were hard, with half the team at South and the other half at North. They did manage to form a spirited and talented team that valued both hard work and fun.

Coaches Steven McChesney, Andrea Melton, and Bob "Big Bird" O'Brien gave a lot of time and knowledge of the sport to make each athlete more skilled at events. Although they never hesitated to make the team work harder, they were always supportive congratulating the team when they met with success. The team also led by captains Erica Browne, Rachael Kaplan, and Rebecca Shapiro, who all tried to make the season as awesome as possible.

The dedication of the women's indoor track team came through in all of their hard-earned performances. The team had a very successful season and hopes to continue the tradition in the coming years.

The Newton South boys Indoor track had a successful season, compiling a 4-2 record as well as many impressive individual performances. Led by senior tri-captains Hunter Fraser, Chi Hoang and George Matsumato, the team maintained a strong performance at all meets.

The indoor track team started off the season by going 1-1 in their first meet against Westford and Weston. They then roared back against Bedford and Bishop Fenwick, going 2-0. They split another meet 1-1 beating Boston Latin but losing to Lincoln-Sudbury.

Many noteworthy accomplishments were made by sophomore Joe Kimpel in the hurdles along with 4x400 meter relay and 4x800 meter relay teams.

The boys team ended the season in an admirable fashion, competing well in both the DCL championship meet and the state class B championship meet.

Swimming and Diving

During the winter swim season, when most students were home eating dinner, the Newton South Girls' Swimming and Diving team braved snow, sleet, and wet hair to log one to two swimming miles each night. The team attracted many new swimmers and divers who will surely make a splash in the years to come. While 1996-97 was a rebuilding year due to several graduation losses, what this year's team lacked in experience, they made up for in enthusiasm and commitment. The two senior captains, Lucy Muellner and Aly Schwartz, provided spirited leadership, while an energetic corps of sophomores and juniors exceeded many personal and team goals. The highlight of the season for these lionesses undoubtedly came in their unprecedented win over arch rival Westford. "That meet was really exciting," exclaimed sophomore Jamie Sands Goldberger. "It all came down to the final relay, and then we won!" Thanks to the squad's dedicated coaches, Scott Pohlman, Scott Stover, and Joe Acconero, the team's performance improved at every meet. Head Coach Pohlman noted that, "Although our record may not reflect it, this team was the most hardworking I've seen. They really had a stellar season."

This year the men's swimming and diving team under coach Scott "dawg" Pohlman, Scott "diggity" Stover and Joe "Ack" Acconero swam its way to a commendable two and seven record. The team was led by Senior Tri-captains Jon Chesebro, Dave Lazarus, and Josh Osterberg whose constant commitment to the team was invaluable. Resident superstar and professional model Josh Osterberg had a flawless season, winning all his races and leaving his competitors breathless. Juniors Andrew Burger, Josh Horn, Evan Kopel, and even lone Sophomore Walter Cho all had strong and continued to better themselves as human beings. When asked to comment on this year's team, Junior Andrew Burger said, "South swimming rules, yar!" The combined swimming and diving performances of captains Jon Chesebro and Dave Lazarus also helped to gain points for the team. The freshman super squad of John Bergdorf, Dylan Ashwood, and Matt Greytek all improved tremendously and were an essential part of the team. "This was a rebuilding year, but can we replace the seniors? As the numbers continue to drop we still stay dedicated to keeping the team afloat," said Scott Dawg. Boasting only ten members this season, the men's swim team set out for personal records, self-improvement, and the search for truth. None of this would have been possible without the dedication and support provided by coaches Scott Pohlman, Scott Stover and Jon Acconero.

Gymnastics

The women's Gymnastics team is proud to have had its most successful season in years. With a new spring floor, constructed by the girls and guys teams, the gymnastics program was off to a promising start. The season opened with an exciting win over Brookline, and an amazing victory over Lincoln-Sudbury, a team which once had a dynasty in the Dual County League. The Lions' domination over the Tigers was reaffirmed when the team earned a high team score, sealing a win at Newton North's Gym. "We're fun, flirtatious, fantastic . . . . . .and flexible too!", said Sophomore Jordyne Wu.

Every individual contributed toward the team's accomplishments. Coaches Deb Satter and Jeff Dias encouraged everyone on the team, helping us to learn new skills and improve our routines. Senior Co-captains Pam Vasile and Jayne Sandman, led the team by helping choreograph floor and beam routines, leading warm up, and ordering new blue and neon orange leotards! Junior Mara Buchbinder, was a veteran, performer on the beam, while junior Erin Washington showed off her dance ability on the floor exercise and her tight form on the unevens. Junior Kate Springfield was an established expert on the bars. Allie Lainez showed great promise on bars with her sheer strength. Our sophomore stars included Ali Ferleger with her great beam routine, Gina Spiegalman with her excellent bars set and handspring vault, Arielle Zibrak with her Big Band, jam packed with dance floor exercise, and Jordyne Wu with a powerful vault and super-cute, crowd pleasing floor routine. The new freshmen brought enormous talent to the team: Anne Springfield, Janelle Amidon, Lulu Fan, Ilana Vasserman, and Janice Wong.

I'll always remember the true unity of the 1996-97 gymnastics team. We had a great time talking before practice, singing rap and dancing on the bus, and going out together to celebrate after our meets."

By Pam Vasile

What if I don't land on the beam?

Don't be silly, Pam Vasile.

The 1996-1997 mens' gymnastics team expected to build on the last season's success, but it would never have dreamed of making the progress that it did. The team, having lost only one senior, still had senior co-captain Mike Chin, juniors co-captain Jon Eddy, Ezra Benjamin, Mike Mazzotta, and Newton Lee, all of whom strived to build broader skill bases for higher scores.

Unfortunately, south lost Benjamin to a broken wrist sustained during the second meet of the season. However, a talented underclass led by freshman Chris Dong and sophomore Brian Sam pushed ahead to fill the void. Dong, a club gymnast, contributed more than 30 points per meet and dazzled all with his floor and high bars routines.

Coach Steeves's neverending encouragement and patience was a key to this season's success. Also, this team had a great work ethic and seemed to learn more everyday. By devoting its energy to a new conditioning program and longer, better practices, South achieved its first goal of a meet-to-meet improvement in team scores; and individual scores increased by as much as one point by the end of the season.

Furthermore, the team accomplished its second goal — a 93-88 victory over Revere, one of the most mentally unrelenting mens' gymnastics teams in recent years, the 1996-1997 squad has a lot to celebrate.

"Contrary to any rumors one may have heard, Newton South does have a ski team, and it is a varsity sport," said junior Ethan Wood, expressing the sentiments of all members of the South ski team. The team, which competes in both downhill and cross-country competitions, was very optimistic at the beginning of the 1997 season. The boys' downhill team was prepared to repeat its spectacular season of 96, in which it made the states meet for the first time ever. As well, longtime coach Mark Abend had left the team, paving the way for popular rookie coach Nathan Spencer. With senior male captain Corey Wilk and senior female co-captains Sabrina Hepburn and Marisha Futer, the season was destined to be a success.

While senior Alex Silver, juniors Seth Fetters and Beth Abramowitz sophomore Emily Bodner, freshman Sophie Dabushzky, and the rest of the team had fine season, injuries and the losses of graduate Erica Kovacs and senior Noah Brother led to mediocre results. Still, as sophomore Matt Tabas put it "Skiing es mi vida. I love the team, its members, its captains, and even Blue Hills at times."

By Corey Wilk

The Newton South Ice Hockey Team, with a very young and inexperienced team, was not expected to do well this year. With a team composed mostly of sophomores, and after the loss of seven seniors the team was planning on a rebuilding year. But the team proved the doubters wrong and instead had a winning season full of heart and determination. For example after an early 3-2 loss to Westford, South played them again this time without injured leading score George Sahinidis and won with John Noble scoring the winning goal with 39 seconds left in the game. This key win tied the Lions for second place with Westford in the DCL. The team was guided by long time Head Coach Charles Rezzuti and Assistant Coach Bobby Mosca. This season the offense was led by senior co-captain Josh Jacobs, junior John Tyer, sophomore George Sahinidis, and freshman Eric Shooman. Junior forwards Shawn Deweese and Mikey Costa picked up steam during the season and became quite a scoring force.

In net senior co-captain Alec Elbert and sophomore assistant-captain Alex Buracl kept the team in a number of close games. They were key factors for our successful season. The Lions relied on senior Lillian Shaller and junior John Noble to anchor the defense. Two sophomores, Jared Weisel and Avi Friedman stepped up and contributed their growing defensive skills. This year the Newton South Hockey Team proved that they were a force to be reckoned with, and showed great promise for seasons to come.

Wrestling

The power of the Staso is in effect.

The 1997 Newton South Lions Wrestling team entered the 96-97 season with great expectations and lofty goals: "We'd like to carry on the winning tradition established here over the past several seasons, and be in position to battle for the league title," said senior varsity starter Mike Cooper. "At the beginning of the season, there were a lot of question marks in certain weight classes but we've been very pleased with the growth and maturity of the freshmen who have been forced to fill those spots," said assistant coach Tom "Toasty" Walsh. The Lions began their season with a shaky two and five record but battled back over the ensuing weeks to regain a respectable seven and seven mark with two ties. This wrestling resurgence over the second half of the season was in part due to the strong leadership of co-captains David Kovalchuk and Lou Turgel. However, an equal if not greater portion of the credit for the Lions second half comeback is due to the incredible coaching of James Police and the outstanding performance of the varsity team including, Barry Morgan, Mike Cooper, Andrew McDonnell, Robbie Santonostaso, David Linshaw, Rob Kawada, Eli Freedman, Mike Semizoglou, Jim Pomeroy and the rest of the Lions squad including freshmen sensations Socrates Rosenfeld, Ben Morse, and Scott Goldberg. Highlights of the season included the 200th career high school coaching victory for Coach James Police which occurred on Sat. February 25th, against Stoughton High School. "This victory serves as a testament to an incredible coach and more importantly a truly great man. I couldn't think of anyone who deserves this honor more than Coach Police and I'm just glad that I could be a part of it," said one Lions wrestler after the monumental victory.

Activities

97 Turning POINT

Points of Interest

● One of Newton South's best attributes is the diversity and quantity of activities. Students join different clubs to meet new people, get more involved, and get rid of all those annoying extra free hours. Not only does involvement in clubs look good for colleges, it's actually a lot of fun. The two newspapers, South Stage, and Regulus, are all fantastic, although time consuming, ways to spend an afternoon, evening or, before deadlines or opening nights, all day. Cooking for Bristol Lodge with the Community Service club, raising money to donate to Chinatown with the Asian Student organization, playing Ultimate Frisbee and rowing on the Charles with the Crew team are popular activities for students. However, it is not popularity that is important to students in clubs. It is the motivation and dedication that really counts. This year, students initiated and formed clubs such as the French Club, the Ping Pong Club, and the Overseas Development Club. Other clubs like S.A.G.E., Debate Team, Math Team, the Gay-Straight Alliance, and the Environmental Club have a strong involvement with the school and sponsor days like BGLAD and Earth Day. Joining clubs and getting involved in activities is an integral part of South. No matter who you are and what your interests are, there is bound to be an activity for you, so go find it and have fun!

Class Officers

The senior class officers for the graduating class of 1997 were a group of mature, responsible, energetic, and hard working, young men and women. These six elected representatives devoted much of their time to making sure that the class of 1997, and the school as a whole, would have fun and constructive ways to spend their free time. From planning innovative events such as the heralded "Club Spin" to ensuring the continuation of Newton South traditions such as prom, senior class trip, and the senior show, the senior officers did their best to incorporate the wishes and best interests of the entire class. Every Tuesday after school, these six individuals met with their extremely devoted advisors, Mr. Todd, Mrs. Fitzgerald, and Mrs. Knight, to think up and plan class events. With no set guidelines or rule books, this group was able to successfully present dances, dramatic performances as well as a heartfelt memorial service. In a stress-filled senior year with its college worries and other distractions, the officers hoped to relieve some of that stress with relaxing and fun filled events.

Denebola

Denebola, Newton South's official school newspaper, is published once a month by its hard working, coke-guzzling, headbanging staff of sleep-deprived students. With the nurturing guidance of faculty advisor George Abbott White, Denebola continued to cover the major issues involving Newton South with the utmost journalistic integrity and objectiveness.

Volume 36 accomplished a great deal in a short amount of time. Provocative centerfolds on the future of Newton South and Time and Learning got people talking about and interested in our school's future during this transition period. We recently completed the Denebola web page, where readers can write to the editors and read current or past issues of Denebola.

We also suffered through our share of setbacks, which only brought the staff closer together. Cramming into a room the size of a recycling bin for every paste-up and patting in endless hours demonstrates the staff's hard work and commitment to putting out one of the best high school newspapers in New England.

The Lion's Roar

As the 200 pages of newsprint slowl turn yellow with time, those who create Volume 13 of The Lion's Roar can res with pride and some happy memories.

We set out to produce a student news paper that reflected who we are: some thing fun, creative, honest, and interes ing, with a special blend of common sens and inspired insanity.

And under the phenomenal guidance c Gordon Duckel, we succeeded. The Lion' Roar was constantly able to experimer with new ideas and directions. One of ou favorite additions to the Roar tradition wa our first-ever "April Fools" issue thi spring. And in June, our three-color, forty page masterwork broke virgin ground i almost innumerable ways.

Given all this, it may be no surprise tha in the spring, The Lion's Roar was name best high school paper in New England b the New England Scholastic Press Assoc ation. Yes, it's an accomplishment worth of pride. But it's overshadowed by the tru success of Volume 13: we worked togeth er, and we had fun.

South Stage

Whether laughing light-heartedly ırough the musical, admiring new talent ı the Frosh/Sophs, or letting an intense agedy like "Hard Times" overwhelm ıem, most audiences simply credit the ac-ors and directors for producing South's lays. Many forget the crucial administra-ve role of South Stage.

"Good acting is ninety percent bureauc-acy," Laurence Olivier once said, and outh Stage, the school's theatrical pro-uction club, works hard to prove this ıaxim true. Made up of five elected offi-ers, an advisor, and all other interested tudents, South Stage does a lot of impor-ant things, producing posters, programs, nd, of course, plays. Yes, sometimes it ıst seems like paperwork. But Shakes-eare said it best:

"A well-run, bureaucratic admin'stration
Paves pretty paths to art and inspiration."

Regulus

Many people are not aware of the tremendous amount of time, energy and dedication that producing Newton South's yearbook requires. A yearbook's purpose is to provide students with a lasting book of memories to have and to cherish. The almost 300 page yearbook is filled with countless pictures, captions and articles. Through late nights, early mornings and continuous laughter, we met every deadline with a coke and a smile.

The yearbook journey began last year when we devoted ourselves to the spring supplement. With Chantal's new found knowledge from yearbook camp, Amy's typing and social skills and Jen's knack for creating layout sheets, the '97 staff started climbing the yearbook mountain.

Since Regulus doesn't have a classroom to meet in, the yearbook staff's second home became Jen's basement with Noodles as our loving mascot. Our dedicated, talented and motivational staff is made up of people who are not only great comedians but who can also manage to produce the most original captions for almost a thousand pictures. We would like to thank everyone who contributed their time, pictures or articles. We hope that you enjoy the 1997 Regulus!

Turning POINT

People To Turn To

The Underclass Years

● Ah, the joys of being an underclassman. Our first three years here are spent endlessly looking up, waiting for our turn to be on top. As freshmen, we are exposed to a whole new environment, faced with the challenge of conquering new territory. We become well acquainted with the cafe and the breezeway, and find security in the fact that our grades don't yet really count. With study halls a thing of the past, sophomore year brings with it permits and excessive walking on weekend nights. "As sophomores we are too young to have any real seniority, but too old to ask which way is Goodwin anymore" one sophomore commented. When junior year finally comes along, with a license and a newfound sense of being near the top, the stress comes with it: Sat's, Achievements, AP's, etc. Even though being an underclassmen can be discouraging sometimes, we can all look ahead, knowing that someday, we will no longer have to look up.

Freshman Life

I entered my freshman year a little apprehensive about what I might encounter. My first day was a virtual nightmare of multicolored backpacks, crowded stairwells, and people infinitely taller than I. I was equipped with a schedule, a map, and all the white-lined paper one could use — but that's about it. I felt out of place, and a little lonely. It seemed that all my friends were on the other side of the world. I didn't feel that this was really my school. As the days became weeks and months, the unfriendly masses became distinct faces and names, and the maze of hallways became familiar and almost logical. I've learned a lot since that day. I've learned that the upperclassmen really aren't scary at all, and I could even (gasp) be friends with them. I've learned that there's never enough time before homeroom, and to avoid senior rock when it rains. I've learned to find love in the most unexpected places. Even though I still have to check my schedule to see when the blocks are over, and even though I couldn't give you directions to the main office if my life depended on it, this school is starting to feel like home.

We grew up on Pepperidge Farm.

We survived freshman year, notoriously the worst year of high school for guys, and entered sophomore year with expectations of having a great time. Well, we're no longer the youngest in school, so we're definitely cooler than we were last year, we tell ourselves. But as we progress as the school's middle class, we realize that while juniors are getting their licenses, seniors are slumping, and freshmen are learning the art of getting rides (something we sophomores mastered long ago). We have nothing that defines our class, we have the satisfaction of knowing that we are no longer the youngest in the school, and we are thankful that the dreaded days of SAT's and college applications have not yet arrived. But what else? We still spend our free blocks in the cafe, but at least we have free blocks, instead of last year's study halls. Outside of school, we definitely go to more parties on the weekends, but that also means we walk more, take more cabs, and ride the T more than we did last year. And the sophomore girls will be the first to let you (and us sophomore guys) know that their year was spent exploring the world of upperclass guys. (No, we are not jealous). So we sophomore guys stick together in an effort to make it through the year in which we are forgotten, knowing that in the next years, armed with our licenses, we will be ready to enter the fabulous world of the Upper Classes.

When we were freshman, we always wondered what sophomore year would bring and we couldn't possibly imagine what it would be like to go from measly freshmanhood to the almost cool status of being a sophomore. Little did we know; not only were we in for a year twice as difficult and stressful as the year before, but we would soon be in the best shape of our lives.

As sophomores we can no longer embarrass ourselves by calling our parents for rides nor are we old enough to have cars, let alone licenses, so we must resort to walking everywhere. Not only do we spend our free time wandering aimlessly through all of Newton, but we also have taken the next step and stumble upon a road that was unknown to us before. Suddenly grades begin to matter, we get a taste of college anxiety with PSATs, and no longer can we hide our faces, forever stuck in the middle.

Seniors have their authority and the relaxation of slump, juniors have their cars, and freshman have their confusion, innocence, and are basically ignored. As sophomores, we are no longer little freshman, but we are still not taken seriously and are stuck daydreaming and waiting for our future to become our present. Although as sophomores we have the confidence to walk through the now familiar hallways, we still await what the next two exciting years may bring.

But, nevertheless, we realize we won't be sophomores forever. Walking will soon be replaced with cars, PSATs will turn into college applications, and soon enough we will no longer be stuck in the middle. But for now all we are left with is tired feet and the realization that no matter what, we will be walking our way to next weekend.

Junior Life

Between the PSATs, SATs, GPAs, appointments at the RMV, and late night stops at Mickey Dee's, juniors sometimes find it hard to see exactly why high school acquired its reputation as fun.

The eleventh grade marks the beginning of an era of tremendous academic pressure, adults' incessant inquiries to the whereabouts of your college selections, and an onslaught of responsibilities that seem to draw you a big step closer to adulthood. Also among common junior activities, students enter the workplace to be greeted by demanding bosses, impatient customers, and so, so many bagels!

Clearly, this year holds the potential to be disastrous to one's peace of mind, but the key to success here is to focus on, and appreciate what this high school time has to offer.

The first and most exciting asset of junior year for many is a little card called the license. Although careless drivers suffer jealousy pangs as passengers in their friends' cars, most agree that riding shotgun beats bonking and bumping your way home on a cold, crowded school bus. Other pleasantries of the eleventh grade includes the semi-formal, the powder puff, and leadership roles in athletics.

We juniors have the comfort of trampling across the breezeway knowing we are halfway done with high school. The halfway point lends itself to fond nostalgia and tender reflection, and also to resolutions for the next half, time to see them through, and the promise of senior year that now waits just a few short months away.

We arrived at South lost freshmen, aimlessly walking down the endless hallways and never knowing where we belonged. Sophomore year we were nobodies who thought we were somebodies, begging anyone we could find for a ride only to be denied and sent back to the safety of the cafeteria.

Now we are juniors, and with it comes a responsibility unlike any other year. Instead of a cafeteria, we have a parking lot, and instead of driving upperclassmen crazy, we're driving crazy. Speaking from experience, I do not know what it is like to pull into the parking lot behind the wheel each day, and to not have to worry about calling "shotgun" or having to sit in the middle of the back seat. But like the rest, I got by, as we all get by the APs, the SATs, thinking about college, and dealing with parents. Junior year is for most a time when we begin to drive, and make that entrance to the adult world by joining the millions on the road. And as we used to worry about the fastest way to class and when our free blocks in the cafe would come, we now worry about who's driving, where we're going and what comes next.

97 Turning POINT

Point of No Return
The SET (Senior Exit Test)

● The following is a test to determine the amount of knowledge you have gained, and to make sure that you are ready to leave Newton South High School. Please follow the directions carefully.

● Directions: Step 1: Grab as many #2 pencils as you can. Step 2: Break the #2 pencils in half — you may take this test in crayon if you wish. Step 3: Answer each question carefully. Random guessing is not suggested, but if you can narrow the answers down to ten or less then try to make an intelligent guess. Step 4: Now begin — you have twelve days to do each section, so work quickly. GOOD LUCK!!!!

● Part I: Multiple Choice

1. Newton South's two colors are (A) Blue and Orange (B) Orange and Blue (C) Apple and Orange (D) Don't know — I'm color blind.
2. Which of the following is the mascot for the Newton South Lions (A) Barney the dinosaur (B) Yogi Bear (C) Toucan Sam (D) all of the above (E) Don't know — never went to a game.
3. What House is Wheeler Commons found in (A) Cutler House (B) Dog House (C) Library (D) Don't know — they all look the same.
4. What is the name of Newton South's yearbook (Hint — can be found somewhere in this book) (A) Denebola (B) Goodwin Commons (C) The Orange Lion (D) Don't know — can't read Latin (or is it French)

● Part II: True or False

1. Newton South has a front entrance.
2. There are more couches in the Senior parking lot than there are in the school.
3. The third floor of Newton South is above the second.
4. Newton South cheerleaders wear pants.

● Part III: Take your time with this question. If you answer it correctly you can leave Newton South proudly. If not, we suggest a pair of dark glasses and a trench coat to sneak your way out. On the line below, spell Newton South High School. (Hint: There is more than one word involved)

(Taken from the 1979 Regulus and edited by Chantal Levitt)

Life of a Senior

It all started way back in freshman year, four years ago. Ah, freshman year, remember how easy it was back then. None of us had any pressure, and the only thing that we had to learn was how to ditch study hall and how to scrub a ride off a upperclassman. Then came sophomore limbo, the time in our high school career when we were absolutely nothing. Even though grades begin to matter and students begin to feel the inevitable oncoming pressure, no sophomore gets to bask in the promised land of upperclassdom. Worst of all is the fate of the sophomore guy. He must remain subservient to all upperclassmen while watching all the girls in his grade gravitate to older guys. The next year, we became juniors and began the hardest year of our lives to date. The misery and self-inflicted pain of SAT's and achievements aren't nearly as painful as hearing the same question over and over again: "So, where do you want to go to college?"

But now all of that is over. There are many differing opinions about senior year, but everyone agrees that it's better than any previous year. "You don't get beat up any more," says senior Scott Rubin. The best thing is the "free blocks," says senior Marni Schultz. Some, like seniors Lizzy Whitehorn and Jessica Bean, feel that senior year's best benefits are "second semester" and "January 27th." But everyone seems to agree with the sentiments of Noah Levin that the best thing concerning senior year is, "You don't have to go next year."

If you don't want to be seen
You don't have to hide
If you don't want to believe
You don't have to try
To feel alive

If this doesn't make you free
It doesn't mean you're tied
If this doesn't take you down
It doesn't mean your high
If this doesn't make you smile
You don't have to cry
If this isn't making sense
It doesn't make it lies

When you're a high school senior, it makes you stop and think. The road to high school takes about 14 years to travel. The road through high school takes another four years. Both roads are quite rough, with plenty of twists and turns. Eventually, though, you reach your destination: college. Once you've reached this point in your life, there's no turning back. The Regulus Staff would like to thank the people that made everything possible:

John Carrier: Thank you for all your guidance and advice. Your endless supply of answers and sense of humor have helped us through many deadlines and late nights. We owe it to you!

NESP and Herff Jones: Thank you for putting our yearbook together. We really appreciate it.

The Chitel Family: Thank you so much for housing us! The basement has been our second home and it's much better than the barn. Your food has been much appreciated. Special thanks to Noods.

The Farman Family: Thanks for your support, love, and for your hard working daughter.

The Levitt Family: Thanks for the use of the laptop and dealing with Chantal's late arrivals home.

We remember the first time we said "We love you" to your face . . . (We meant it for the rest of you as well) You had just been born, and we thought you were the most beautiful thing on earth. And in that little face of yours, we thought we could see the future . . . It looked beautiful, too.

Now we know that we're living in that future and that it's very different than we imagined it would be. It hasn't all been beautiful. Some of it has been scary and painful and sad. But through it all, we've watched you grow and live your life with joy and courage and hope. And although we don't have much time together as we did when you were little, we can still look into your beautiful face and tell you the same thing we told you back before we even knew who you were — the same thing we will always tell you, whatever the future brings . . . we love you.

The voices of generations move through you,
You belong to a rich heritage in which you share a sacred place.

You are a women of character,
You are strong but not tough,
You are gentle, never weak
You are righteous, honest and forgiving.

A journey lies before you,
Walk firmly on the path of life,
Seek out wisdom and friendship through words and deeds.

Have faith in yourself and mankind,
Remember to love and have fun.

You are everything we dreamed our baby girl to be.
May all your dreams come true . . .

Congratulations on reaching this milestone. What a treat it has been for us to have shared your first eighteen years, each one with its own imprint of your spirit. From a slightly scrawny start through school years at Zervas, Summers in Denmark and Camp Pembroke to NSXC meets it's been a blast. You have a true gift for knowing how to enjoy life. We hope you'll continue to share that gift with others (including your parents!).

Love,
Mom,
Dad and Josh

You've traveled far Lizzy, the best is yet to come!
Love,
Mom, Dad and Stephie

Dearest Tania,
CONGRATULATIONS! Your courage makes us strong, your smile brightens our day. We are proud of our little princess, you will grow up to be a queen one day! Insha-Allah
Love,
Mom, Abbu, Ali, and your slave Jawo

The Girls '97

DAENYA, JEN, JENNY, KERRI, LILLIAN, LUCY, NORA

We are friends because we know what it's like for people to be jealous of us. Oh Jen your our coolest friend. No Tools to Lend. Virgin JB. Barbie big wheels. Party Van. RW. Lucy's Bike. You payed $40,000 for this car and the windows don't work. October 31, now we're BMN. This car is tired of driving. No diggity. It's Jens party; lets get it on tonight. Lil peach, Cheesecake, BK, where should we go next? Cabots? IHOP? Let's ride puertorican style. Our friends in the yellow Prelude. Singing Celine Deone, chasing Lillian down Needham Street. Ames, Caldors (our clothes stores) There has been a breakin at 42 Westbourne Road, over and out. Everyone says Dumbchit . . . Dumbchit. Abercrombie . . . do you have jackets? . . . what size? . . . How do we know that they're Abercrombie jackets? Lost and Found Vodka. Jen's red underwear. Nora are you going leopard tonight? Can you be any blonder? I have cupcakes at my house. If they are not Hostess, I don't want one. Jenny's surprise birthday party, "He's cheating on me." Friday the 13th: Nora in the shower: "I'm washing my face": Lillian, "I can drive": IN WALKS MO. "What's going on in here?" "Who can't walk down my stairs?" "Jen?" "I tripped her." What? Driveby's, Everybody duck, Look it's Lillian by herself. Powder Puff '96. We're going to kick your ass!!! 32-8, That's what we thought. Senior-Junior Drink OFF. Dibs on driving. Let's play soberest driver. "How do you play that?" Scavenger Hunt '96 "Guy's I'm stuck under the grocery cart" "Shut up." Road Open to Abutters only. Get out of the car!!, Do you want to fight? Why do we always get on the subject? Once we start we can't stop. He popped a Peter. Look guy's they're Russian. Jen and Lillian get out of the car or shut up!!! It's A-Block, we have beer. It takes 30 to get your name on the funnel. Nora might have another party. Shoulder Tapping in the rain. Anytime Anywhere Pop A Squat. Guys come and go, but friendships last forever. Look's like it's only us again tonight. After a whole year we figured out one thing . . . WKWAT.

To our sister

Congratulations!

We are so proud of you.

Mom, Baba, Mishi, Mamonjan-Phupo, Ali, Tania, and Jawo

Marni,

For the longest time we thought about what to say that would be witty, but also embarrassing. We always came back to "We love you."

Mom and Dad

As a sister and a friend,

I love you.

Jenny

You will always be our "turtle baby." You are a joy; we are proud of you and love you. Congratulations!

Dad, Mom, Todd, and Eva

Dear Jenny,
We love you:
The person you are
The values you believe in
The strength of your will
The depth of your emotion.

We will miss you next year
But get pleasure from your success

Love,

Sarah Kate,
Thank you for countless lazy Friday afternoons, for hours of conversation that never got boring, for late-night fits of delirium and hysterical laughter, for saving me from endless terrifying social scenes, for shoveling me out of my driveway at midnight, for being my constant source for interesting gossip, and for loving me and letting me love you back. Your friendship has taught me how to grow. I am so proud of the caring, intelligent, funny, patient, beautiful person you are. You have all my love always. Anna Flora

Heartfelt thanks for a fine education to all at Newton South, especially Van Seasholes.
Best Wishes in your retirement from Mateo and all the Randos.

Congratulations Phil!

Memories last forever. It's times like these that we will always remember. The friendships between Rachel, Kathy, Julie Z., Jill, Julie K., Caren and Sibvon will never end. Memories: Sibvon (handsome) in the trunk of the jeep; Julie Z. (Jules) — "Nobody touches my radio in the boat;" Jill's never ending work schedule; Kathy buying bagels and only eating ⅓ of it; Rachel constantly driving towards the beach; Caren's Joe Boxers; Julie K. trying to fit ten people in her Honda. We will always remember these things: UBC; Rachel's beach house; that special raspberry smell; shorty; the bathroom incident; lottery tickets; R.E.M.; The Jeep; "fun" at the Burlington Mall. Although we are moving on, the memories we have now, and the ones we will make in the future, will never move out of our lives. We wish luck to the class of '97 in all they do. It can only get better from here.

Congratulations Rebecca!
We are very proud of you.
Always keep a smile on your face.
We love you . . .
Mom, Dad, Dan and Pepper too

Are you happy it's all over? Well, there is plenty of reasons to be happy. You've done a big, gigantic job. But it's a beginning. Enjoy every moment, every second of your life — they are all unique.
Love,
Mama and Papa

TOVAH

From the moment I first saw you, the meaning of my life was redefined. You have proved that you are capable of meeting and excelling in the challenges that life can bring. My fondest desire is your health and happiness for your entire life. May your wishes, desires and dreams all be fulfilled.

The pride I feel in your accomplishments is exceeded only by the respect I feel for you as a mature young lady. The time for "letting go" is at hand. The stars and heavens are within your grasp. Remember as you soar, your father's love is always there.

All my love,

DADDY

My Little Lulu,

The greatest thing that ever happened to me. We are best friends, and even deeper than that — we are sisters. The past two years without you have been very hard on me, I cry a lot and wish you were with me. I have to get over that b/c we are both growing up — you're going to college now too. You are so sweet, so smart, and so beautiful, never let anyone tell you different. I am always, for the rest of our lives, going to be there for you. I love you more than anything in this entire world, you are going to do so well, good luck in all you do!

Luv, your big sister,
Juliette

With love and appreciation for all the joy you bring us
Good luck next year!
Maman and Papa Smurf

Michael —
Congratulations on a successful four years.
You are an inspiration to all of us.
We have been nourished by your sense of humor, your decency and your determination.
We'll miss you next year!

Denise:
We are very proud of you as we have always been.
As you go off to college, we are confident that you will continue to grow into a mature responsible adult. Always maintain your sense of humor and compassion.
Love Dad, Mom, and Jason

Dearest Jessica,

You are the best daughter and sister any family could ask for! We adore you.

We wish you and your friends the best of luck in the coming years.

With all our love,

Mom, Dad, Carl, Nina, and Palookie

Dear Jessica,

We are so proud of everything you have accomplished and everything you are. As you venture forth into the world.

May God bless and keep you always
May your wishes all come true
May you always do for others
And let others do for you
May you build a ladder to the stars
And climb on every rung
And may you stay forever young
May you stay forever young

— Bob Dylan

With love and congratulations,

Dad and Mabs

Dear Hanna,

You are taking your canoe on an exciting journey. You handle it well, so enjoy your trip. And when you encounter unexpected rough waters, keep cool and hold your course. Remember that there is always a quiet harbor with awaiting warmth and interest in your adventures.

Love Mommy, Daddy and Rachel

Tanya,

CONGRATULATIONS!

We're proud of your achievements.

Good luck in your future goals in College as well as in life.

HEY NOODLES, WHY THE LONG FACE???

The Warp Zone. When you're in a place that's kinda newish . . . We were up till 5:30 am. I have a secret; if it wasn't for the . . . I'd be a . . . , The ZELDA song, our incompetents. You're what the French call Les incompetants. Where's the ladder? Dave and Mike, are you even on yearbook? The wall of fame/shame. If you get in and I don't, I can't talk to you for at least two weeks. Should I eat a cow or a horse? Fred and Eric, what happened to your diet? I'm named after a cold cut. Our beloved mascot. Eli's on the phone; Hi Ter, Mum. Mentadent — the freshmaker. Don't look at the proofs! The wonderbra. There are 16 _ _ in this room. Hey Tovah, stop that! Where's the ladder. Animal crackers. Let me have the stamper! Amy, you spelled Regulus wrong. John looks scary with his mustache. How many people are on ASO? Mems of the barn. You guys are changing all our captions. Trousermouse and gingerminge. Eye twitch. Chantal, you should ball the NAACP. I haven't even changed my underwear today. She's joining the navy! I, I, Captain!!!! Use a black pen. We all switch places when I ring the bell. I have lice in my eye brow. It's not a line of color, it's spot color!! I hop, you hop, we all hop to IHOP. Where's the ladder. Princess and Madonna, our little lovers. Super Mario Brothers. Duck hunt. Hide the yearbook stuff, we're having a New Year's Eve party. No Diggity!! WKTAF. Where are Justin's keys? Amy's HELLOW. RN and AN ad at 3:30 am. Fred: "I have so much homework!!" Amy, go be with your friends!!! Nintendo 64. matter in my mouth. C'mon, I know I know you're my psychic friend. Grace, Grace, GRACE, GRACE!! Who is Maria? Montel Jordan. Who's the master? I just chit my pants, What shall I do? Anyone want a diet coke? Have a coke and a smile. Where's the ladder? Amy your Mom called, the weather changed. No one call between 10 and 11; it's Eli time. I once dated a girl named Clementine. Who was Hitler . . . a Feurer! Justin, why don't you have your pants on? Come on, let's emmigrate from these people. D, you would have never gotten Editor-in-Chief, they hated you! Where are your matches? Amy where's the cupcake? Fred and Eric, our saviors, Amy, you know everyone! You should hear me in the morning. J.B. wants me. Scrabble, G versus F. Dave you have two warnings, one more and you're out. Invite Jess over, she's hot. The answer is in the urn. Ebonics fighting. My cleaning lady had a big booty. Terry, did your landscaper kill somebody? Ter — go back to Joberg! I really got to get myself one of those swimteam bathing suits. Amy get away from the rubber cement. Amy's nutty. Sometimes, when Noodles thinks I'm crying . . . Where is Nicaragua? Next to Portugal? You should hear me in the morning. So, tell me what you want, what you really really want. The yearbook dance. Friday night "meetings." Dinner at Johnny's. If you want to be my booger, you got to get in my nose. Hanging shower curtains at 2am, we're always laughing! You girls are the best ever. WE LOVE YOU!

We share the days of laughter, we share the nights of sorrow.
And in the morning after, we face a bright tomorrow.
Side by side, we'll always stand, spirits flying high.
Long as I can hold your hand, we'll never say good-bye.
We've walked the halls of learning and serve a proud tradition.
The flame of truth is burning to enhance our vision.
Look at how the future gleams caught against the sky.
Long as I can share your dreams, we'll never say good-bye.
There's nothing to be sure of, but we'll try to last forever.
For now we know the pure love we feel when we're together.
There comes a day when we should part, but our friendship will never die.
Long as you are in my heart, we'll never say good-bye.
